COURSE	This course uses an inquiry-based learning approach. The purpose of this course
DESCRIPTION	is to introduce graduate students and upper-level undergraduates to music
AND	scholarship and to provide an opportunity to further develop the research and OBJECTIVES	bibliographic skills and techniques necessary to succeed at the graduate level. It will focus on the collection, management, interpretation and communication of information concerning music.
COURSE	The course will be held in a seminar format, allowing participants the ACTIVITIES	opportunity to discuss and critically assess problems and issues concerning music scholarship and research techniques. During the first session (9 Sept.), students will be introduced to library resources and research tools by Claudette Cloutier, librarian and Associate Vice-Provost for learning, Geology&
	Geophysics, Learning Services, Science & Engineering.
COURSE	Course content will focus on the acquisition of skills necessary to conduct CONTENT	research and to prepare reports and grant applications. During September, we CONTENT	will focus on basic concepts and techniques, notably finding sources, the structuring of bibliographies, the art and technique of footnotes and endnotes, etc. During October, each student will use this knowledge to prepare and present a grant application (either real or fictitious) with a clear, focused research objective. A successful assignment should be seen as a preliminary step towards the application for research grants offered by the institutions or funding agencies such as the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the Canada Council for the Arts, etc. November and December will be devoted to the oral and written presentation of research reports.

ASSESSMENTS (INCLUDING APPROPRIATE GRADING SCHEME)

- I. Researching reception. Students are required to prepare an annotated bibliography that will accompany an oral and written report on the English language reception of the one of the composers on the accompanying list. This assignment will be done in two stages:
  - 1. Annotated bibliography: prepare a representative and balanced list of at least 20 sources (no more than 4 stand-alone websites) that provide information on the North American reception of the composer you have chosen. Each source must be accompanied by a short paragraph explaining its pertinence to your project. The list should include primary source material (published texts, public comments made by the composer, interviews, etc.) and secondary sources (critiques and academic discussion of the composer and his or her music), as well as sources discussing the North American context within which this music circulated. The bibliography must be structured according to rules set out in The Chicago Manual of Style (15th or later edition). The bibliography is due 30 September (20%).
  - 2. Oral and written report: prepare a short essay on the English language reception of your chosen composer (ca. 1500 words). Particular attention should be given to when and via which media his or her work began to circulate on this continent. If reception has been slight, try to explain why. The written essay will serve as the basis for the student's oral presentation. Oral presentations (10%) will take place on 25

    November and 2 December; written reports (20%) are due on 2

    December.
- II. Preparing grant applications. Building on the skills acquired with the bibliography assignment, students are required to prepare a grant application (either real of fictitious). This assignment will be presented in written form. The application should be based on the research/creative project that the student intends to pursue at the Master's or the PhD level. The written document will use the SSHRC application form as a template and will include the following: title, summary presentation of the research hypothesis/problematic or (in the case of composers and performers) creative objectives, theoretical criteria, methodology, time frame, expected results and bibliography. This assignment (20%) is due on 21 October and will be accompanied by a short oral presentation.
- III. During the course of the semester each student will be assigned to make one oral report on a chapter from The Modern Researcher and The Cultural Study of Music (10% each = 20%)
- IV. Class participation 10%
